CHAPTER 1

What the Most Experienced Travelers Know

The readership of Travel & Leisure and Conde Nast Traveler might be said to include the most experienced travelers in the world, the most interested and studious. Long-established in their authority and readership, the two magazines are so essential that they are used extensively as industry publications, as well as consumer advisors for the traveling public. That suggests that their readers really know what they're talking about.

When asked to name the best island in America, the prevailing answers stacked up in favor of Hilton Head Island, and it has gone that way year after year.

Superb and Yet Versatile

Hilton Head Island became America's favorite because it offers a particular gift to everyone, with something to engage and satisfy just about every kind of interest. Somehow, Hilton Head pulls this off while achieving excellence in them all.

In fact, certain fans have adopted Hilton Head as the standard-bearer for their own interest and passion, such as the folks who nicknamed it Golf Island. With 32 courses hereabouts to choose from, with course designs by the leaders in the field, with six hours of postcard-like TV programming worldwide each spring for coverage of the Heritage Classic Tournament, it's no wonder Hilton Head Island walked off with this particular nickname.

But there is so much more. The most authoritative lists of the world's favorite beaches place Hilton Head Island at or near the top just about every year. Few places in the world have set aside such a large proportion of land for preserving nature for quiet enjoyment, and almost none started doing this so early in their story.

And speaking of stories, the history and heritage of this locale includes unique turning points that influenced the course of our nation. The experienced tastes of our visitors and residents have resulted in a prevailing standard of cuisine that attracts top chefs. And Hilton Head Island is home to a dynamic arts community composed of accomplished artists in every medium, and a theater scene that makes Hilton Head home to some folks who swore they'd never leave New York.

Whatever your passions, you'll find Hilton Head Island serves as a garden for cultivating them. There is so much that is excellent here, in so many fields of interest.

What You Need to Settle In

Settling in for a vacation, the things you need are right down the oak-lined street from Spicebush at Sea Pines, in The Shops at Sea Pines Center. Designed by the founders to be a resource for living in the spirit of vacation, this a support system wrapped in a prestige shopping destination and arranged around a sunlit, palm-shaded plaza.

The Shops at Sea Pines Center offers a rare range of resources, from personal services to fashions, from fine dining to fun food, and from practical resources such as a gas station and a post office, to unforgettable art and literature that you can take home to recall your Hilton Head Island experience.

CHAPTER 2

So Many Things To Do

It's not just the variety of activities, it's the quality. People discover that Hilton Head Island is the place to pursue their passions, no matter what their passions might be.

The Harbour Town Yacht Basin

Strolling the yacht basin, we're reminded that Hilton Head Island is a magnet for people who could go anywhere, and the yachts parked there are clear evidence. The Liberty Oak is celebrated as the place where it all began, and there, singer-songwriter Gregg Russell serenades children of all ages as our summer evenings begin.

The Harbour Town Lighthouse & Museum makes the story of our island quick and fun, with an interesting exhibit on every landing, with memorable gifts on the ground floor, and with one-of-a-kind souvenirs on the top. Also at the top – and also one-of a kind – is the view of Calibogue Sound, Daufuskie Island, and the western horizon you can enjoy from there, including Hilton Head Island's favorite sunsets. The lighthouse serves as our version of the Eiffel Tower – if you haven't been there, how can you say you've seen Hilton Head?

The Harbour Town Pier is the launching point for kayaks, parasails, jet skis, and boats. Guided dolphin cruises and sunset cocktail excursions for the grownups are favorite pastimes that get their start right here.

Beaches Among the Finest in the World

A short five-minute walk from Spicebush is the Sea Pines Beach Club, which world-travelers tell us are second to none. Coligny Beach, a short drive away, is where you'll find beach volleyball and plenty of wide-open, near-white sand to remind you of how well you got away.

Seashells, shellfish, and sand dollars are among the highlights of a stroll along these shores. We remind our friends that the seashells are fine souvenirs, but the starfish and even the sand dollars are living creatures that need to stay right where you found them. Thanks!

Family fun, and sometimes whole days spent on the beach, are a well-known strength of Hilton Head Island. Perhaps less well known is how well-equipped America's favorite island is for grownup fun. Nightlife is no stranger to Hilton Head Island, and true to our unusual style, some of the best examples begin on the beach, and while the sun's still up.

Where Our Night Life Begins

The Salty Dog Cafe is such a delicious and delightful place to watch the evening come, enjoying fun food and cool drinks, that they have succeeded in making the Salty Dog souvenir t-shirt a badge of frolic that's recognized across the country and around the world. Even the experts are hard-pressed to explain why the image of that mournful hound says frisky things about the wearer: "Been there; done that." The Salty Dog is not just a lively place to begin an evening out – it's like joining a rollicking society of people who know how to have a good time.

For a dinner that's different in the way the locals like best, Truffles Café offers what many call the perfect menu, and it is only steps away from Spicebush at Sea pines in The Shops at Sea Pines Center. An array that ranges from the familiar – comfort food done well – all the way to the unexpected, Truffles takes full advantage of the bounty of the Lowcountry.

Their wine selection is well-informed, and the Parisian poster behind the bar is an accurate invitation to the feeling of excellence and enjoyment people find at Truffles.

For a different vibe, and a different view, The Quarterdeck, at the foot of Harbour Town Lighthouse and overlooking Calibogue Sound presents all manner of musical entertainment in the evenings, alongside its exceptional waterfront dining selections. A whole section of the menu is devoted to the fresh catch of the day. The world famous 18th hole of the Harbour Town Golf Links is in view of the patio seating at The Quarterdeck.

An Evening of Jazz

A little later in the evening, one of those things Hilton Head Island offers that's acknowledged to be world-class is The Jazz Corner. Local jazz musician and historian, Bob Masteller, dreamed of a spot that presents the perfect atmosphere and acoustics, the finest cuisine, and the most accomplished musicians. The Jazz Corner has proved to be the fulfillment of that dream for more than 21 years.

A Big-City Arts Scene

A new Hilton Head Island visitor from New York City told us that when he left his first theater production at the Arts Center of Coastal Carolina, he expected to see Checker Cabs outside rather than palm trees. It's that good. And it makes sense when you think of it. What Broadway performer wouldn't want a seven-week gig in a subtropical paradise, not to mention on America's favorite vacation island.

If the Arts Center is the Broadway of Hilton Head Island, then Lean Ensemble is the downtown stage. Lean Ensemble is a group of professionals dedicated to presenting modern classics and thought-provoking original plays. It's the kind of company you'd find in a city 10 times this size and it has gained a reputation that is equally accomplished.

Galleries abound here, offering significant works in every medium, as well as ways for people to take home a lasting reminder of what they felt on Hilton Head Island. The beauty here inspires so many artists that there are almost too many galleries to mention in a birds-eye view. Surely, the Art League of Hilton Head and the Artists of Sea Pines would go on any list. Perhaps the best-situated of all is VIVID Gallery, in The Shops at Sea Pines Center. The works of art photographer Jeff Keefer are presented here in a gorgeous, 3,000-square-foot space that includes home-like settings, as well as gallery exhibits.

The Pampered Part of a Vacation

Even in the midst of a getaway, and perhaps especially if it's a family getaway, a little "you" time is wise to build in. Massage, hair and nails, and restorative spa treatments are quite near to Spicebush in Le Spa, on the sunny plaza amidst The Shops at Sea Pines Center.

Jiva Yoga is a studio that many call their own-away-from-home, thanks to the exceptional expertise and kindly reception they encounter there. Jiva leads a session of Beach Yoga too, at Coligny Beach on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings. So there's no need to rely solely on a solitary yoga practice or to miss the classes that inspire and recharge you, while you visit here on Hilton Head Island.

What Better Than a Farmers' Market?

Insiders know that a farmers' market is not just for getting fresh produce and browsing local crafts. It's where people go to find out what's going on. What better way to do both than at the weekly Farmers & Makers Market, Tuesdays from March through October in The Shops at Sea Pines Center. The Farmers Market is the must-go place for connecting with the pulse of America's favorite island. Residents and vacationers alike make it a thing.

If art is what gets you browsing and chatting, then plan to drop in at the First Thursdays Art Market on the beautiful plaza of The Shops at Sea Pines Center, featuring the works of the Artists of Sea Pines, from 4 to 6 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month from March through December.

By Bike or By Horse

Togetherness – for couples or families alike – seems to get better on a bike, and our 12-mile-long island offers more than 14 miles of beaches and 104 miles of paved, shared-use paths that make biking an even greater pleasure than ever. Visitors discover that arrangements for enjoying these trails and beaches are easy at the Peddling Pelican.

Horses seem to remind us of something peaceful about ourselves, and so Lawton Stables, just a mile from Spicebush, can give a change-of-pace to visiting town-folks, or even an expert resource to "horse people" and equestrians in the know. People come to the Stables to begin a ride over the trails, through the forests, and alongside the lakes of our 600-acre Sea Pines Forest Preserve. Some come just to pet the horses, and children love that too.

The Heart of History & Heritage

Folks tell us they find an even deeper level of enjoyment when their vacation touches something true about their heritage. Even the history of other people can engage us in a way that goes deep inside.

Here on Hilton Head Island, visitors can wander a site where people have been coming for at least 4,000 years to take in the richness that nature gave our sub-tropical paradise, as testified by the Sea Pines Shell Ring.

Less than a mile from Spicebush, too, lie the Stoney-Baynard Ruins, the remains of a mansion built in the 1790s by Revolutionary patriot and seagoing privateer, Capt. Jack Stoney.

The story of Mitchelville is uniquely a Hilton Head tale, and it gathers visitors and explorers and even family reunions year after year. At Mitchelville Freedom Park, we can delve into the legacy of America's first town self-governed by African-Americans.

The Coastal Discovery Museum at Honey Horn brings together our past and present in an unspoiled setting all its own. Here you can explore the cultural and the natural history of Hilton Head Island. Situated on the 68-acre site of Honey Horn, an enduring farm near the north end of our island, the Coastal Discovery Museum presents both permanent and touring collections of interest to anyone who enjoys the feeling of exploring, learning, and knowing more.

Time to Tee It Up

A golfer would say we saved the best for last. Where do you begin to share the vast story of golf on Hilton Head Island? Maybe a start for your own discoveries from among our more than 30 courses should begin with the Harbour Town Golf Links, home of the Heritage Classic.

Just a little more than 50 years old, the Harbour Town Golf Links are already the stuff of legends. From when and why the course was built, to who designed and guided it to the first tournament champion there, it's not just a story. The Harbour Town Golf links are a treasure trove of the experiences that put the passion in this supposedly leisurely sport.

As iconic in its way as the Harbour Town Lighthouse, the course finishes in its very shadow at the end of 18. It is uncanny how many close, head-to-head championship tussles have unfolded there, before a thrilled gallery and a worldwide TV audience.

And although they are barely around the corner from Spicebush, the Harbour Town Golf links are only the beginning. The Lowcountry Golf Club Owners Association can match you with a tee time on the course that suits you best. The front desk of the Harbour Town Yacht Club, where folks check in for their villas at Spicebush, is always happy to share the inside track with Spicebush owners, too.

What to Expect When You Come

Couples draw closer, friendships deepen, parents and children bond in ways they hadn't even imagined – these are the stories that unfold in Spicebush at Sea Pines.

This sea bird's eye view of Hilton Head Island was barely a beginning. The experiences people have here are as unique as their own desires. Those experiences are so touching, so exciting, and so memorable that many begin making arrangements to come back every year.

We make living your own Hilton Head Island story easier than you might think.

It starts with a conversation between someone like you, who's given careful though to what they and their loved ones want, and someone who is grateful to listen. We offer that here in Spicebush at Sea Pines.

Your Gateway to the World

If owning at Spicebush, rather than renting, interests you, then you'll be delighted to know that you don't have to pass up the personal attention that sets Spicebush apart to get the foremost exchange privileges in the world. Santorini, Portofino, Palm Springs, Maui, and more are waiting to welcome you.

An important benefit you'll hear about when you consider a timeshare is that many of them come with exchange privileges at vacation destinations around the world. The two best-known networks for this are RCI (Resort Condominiums International), with more than 6,000 exchange properties, and II (Interval International), which adds thousands more properties in more than 80 countries around the world.

Either of these networks can enable you to exchange your timeshare weeks for another destination, here or abroad.

The flexibility this provides is a huge incentive. But you don't have to buy into one of the big timeshare systems to get it.

Ownership in Spicebush at Sea Pines brings with it all the exchange privileges of RCI and Interval International, without signing on to one of the gigantic timeshare systems.
